

Chill out: Antarctic Village – No Borders, 2007, Lucy and Jorge Orta's project where you can become a permanent passport holder in Antarctica

An artwork in itself: the studio (top) recreated by Peter Blake, above, is on show at Waddington Custot

If wishes were horses: Tracey Emin's drawing inspired by a girl's holiday request

A child's dream: Joshua Raz, Green Lights Above a Blue Planet and Man Amongst It All

16 will also have work by contemporary artists (Rachel Whiteread and Yinka Shonibare among them) to help raise £1 million for 158 surviving families of the fire.

ZAP TO DOVER STREET

ART lovers should make a beeline for ZAP in Dover Street. It's the very last week of this pop-up store, curated by the Zabludowicz Collection, the Camden-based gallery that focuses on contemporary art. With five other institutions across the UK the collection has cherry-picked a selection of great art buys, with works by both newcomers and Turner prize winners. There's everything from tea towels and prints, to jewellery and ceramics, with prices starting from £4. Not to be missed (zabludowiczcollection.com).

Bronze winner: Mary Beard brings a fantasy museum of ancient objects to Frieze
